As the new president, Stein will be responsible for fundraising, brand awareness and speaking at events.

“I look forward to continuing to support Olive Crest in an elevated role as I am wholeheartedly committed to breaking the vicious cycle impacting the exceptional children within our welfare system today,” said Stein. “The love and support of an extended family can do so much to help shape a positive future for our Las Vegas youth.”

This year Stein helped champion many of Olive Crest’s initiatives with the support of her firm Holley, Driggs, Walch, Fine, Puzey, Stein & Thompson including a company-wide hygiene drive in March and sponsoring the Operation Independence Graduation in June with graduate caps and gowns. Stein is already looking forward to an October fundraising luncheon and other events, as well as hiring a new employee who is currently in the Operation Independence graduating class.

Holley Driggs Law Firm and Stein are committed to their Nevada roots and building into the communities they serve through child-oriented charities of focus for the Firm including Boys & Girls Clubs of Southern Nevada, Girls on the Run and Olive Crest. In addition to Olive Crest, Stein is also committed to volunteering her time at St. Rose Dominican Health Foundation, UNLV Foundation and Communities in Schools Southern Nevada.

Olive Crest Nevada has also selected Mary Thompson of Capstone Brokerage, Inc. as Vice President of the Board. Their new roles on the Board are effective immediately.
